IMMIGRANT HOST ARE FAST LEAVING STEAMSHIP HARPALION

A procession of Portuguese and towng a close and careful inspection. Sixty-four immigrants filed down the to be made of the Harpalion by Federation from the British steamship and officers at this port. It is claimed that the charter called for a strict observance of the United States laws and thence to the Federal station this morning.

These are the people passengers in the Harpalion, who have been passed by the corps of United States immigration officials, but will be detained in the hospital until a more complete diagnosis of their ailments can be made.

At the Territorial immigration station are several hundred single men who arrived at Hawaii last in the immigrant ship. The men were easily handled, and they now await an opportunity of leaving to take up employment on this or the other islands.

The Harpalion yet remains at quarantine wharf. Following the removal of all immigrants, the crew of the vessel will begin a general inspection of cleaning. The Harpalion is to be given a thorough fumigation at the Federal plant.

Monday will be devoted to the cleaning and fumigation of the ship, after which the vessel is to be shifted to one of the wharves on this side of the harbor.

Ship Makes Favorable Impression.

There are nearly five hundred tons of cargo, including cement, pig iron, up the work of inspection of baggage and sundries, to be discharged here.

A favorable report is predicted for the week.

R. HORNER IS KUKAIAU WINNER

that the right went into the Circuit Court, on action for an injunction to prevent the sale.

The court's decision in full is as follows:

"Agreements of the class to which the agreement referred to in the bill belongs are not favored in law as a rule, and a long line of decisions, well considered by eminent authorities and by systems of jurisprudence, down to the present time, have found agreements of that character as being against public policy, except in certain cases."

"Now, in this case, if it had been the intent of the original partners to limit the ownership of the one-quarter interest transferred and assigned by the bill of sale, which appears not to have been dated, but was recorded on the 13th of September, 1889, it would have been an easy matter to have expressed the idea to be conveyed to H. H. Williams, Fort street, the disposition of any interest in the partnership of John M. Horner & Sons by a covenant running with the property assigned in the instrument. This was not done, and the instrument is absolutely silent as to any limitation of the property assigned and transferred. It is only fair to assume that the parties didn't intend to so limit it. There have been exceptions, it is true, where agreements such as that referred to in the bill have been upheld by the courts, but those who have been under exceptional circumstances and upon clear and convincing proof; and I do not think that the evidence shows in the case at bar such exceptional circumstances, nor is the proof clear and convincing with the establishment of such an assumption. In my judgment, the respondent is entitled to a judgment and decree of this court in accordance with the prayer contained in his answer; and that the injunction be dissolved; and the bill dismissed."
